

CCG AMS B.V. is expanding - office at new flower bulb auction place

Effective October 27th, 2006, network member CCG AMS B.V. has opened a new office located at new Agriport A7 flower bulb auction premises.

By opening of our new office at the fast expanding AGRIPORT A7 premises, we have gained a highly interesting location at one of the latest and most promising agriculture centres within The Netherlands. This engagement will strengthen the depths of services which CCG offers to our clients. Globally well known Aalsmeer flower auction is the model of success which is the role model for Agriport auction, but only specialized on flower bulbs.

Flowerbulbs AGRIPORT A7: One of the systems to get the flowerbulbs from grower to (in many cases) exporter is to go through an auction system. Auctions for flowerbulbs were formerly situated in The Netherlands in three specific flowerbulb areas and now have been combined into one auction covering the complete processes and run through highly sophisticated and state of the art auction systems. Since the combined auction start the export market is finding its way through this new auction system.

Greenhouses AGRIPORT A7: The second interesting reason for CCG's engagement is that Agriport A7 will also be the center of the establishment of a new large greenhouse park. Experienced growers will grow under ideal circumstances a wide variety of produce, which are important for our international export activities. The first greenhouses have already been built, and the first harvest is expected for early 2007. The Dutch department of agriculture supports the initiatives to arrange fastest exports by road, by sea and by airfreight from this new growing point.
